 SHA'BILLY. adv. [from shabby.] Meanly; reproachfully; despicably; paltrily. A cant word.
 SHA'BINESS. n. f. [from shabby.] Meanness; paltriness.
 He exchanged his gay shabbiness of cloaths fit for a much younger man, to warm ones that would be decent for a much older one. Addis. Spectator.
 SHA'BLY. adj. [A word that has crept into conversation and low writing; but ought not to be admitted into the language.] Mean; paltry.
 The dean was so shabby, and look'd like a ninny,
 That the captain suppos'd he was curate to Jenny. Swift.
 To SHA'CKLE. v. a. [from the noun, shackles, shackels, Dutch.] To chain; to fetter; to bind.
 It is great,
 To do that thing that ends all other deeds;
 Which shackles accidents, and bolts up change. Shakefp.
 You must not shackle and tie him up with rules about indifferent matters. Locke.
 No trivial price
 Should set him free, or small should be my praise
 To lead him shackled. Philips.
 So the stretch'd cord the shackled danceries,
 As prone to fall as impotent to rise. Smith.
 SHA'CKLES. n. f. wanting the singular. [reacul, Saxon, shackels, Dutch.] Fetters; gyves; chains for prisoners.
 Himself he frees by secret means unseen,
 His shackles empty left, himself escaped clean. Fa. Queen.
 A servant commonly is less free in mind than in condition;
 his very will seems to be in bonds and shackles, and desire itself under duress and captivity. South's Sermons.
 The force in fetters only is employed;
 Our iron mines exhausted and destroyed
 In shackles. Dryd. Juv.
 SHAD. n. f. A kind of fish.
 SHADE. n. f. [reacu, Saxon; shade, Dutch.]

 Spring no obstacle found here nor shade,
 But all sunshine. Milton.
 2. Darknes; obscurity.
 The weaker light unwillingly declin'd,
 And to prevailing shades the murmuring world resign'd. Rofc.
 3. Coolness made by interception of the sun.
 Antigonus, when told that the enemy had such volleys of arrows that hid the sun, said, that falls out well; for this is hot weather, and so we shall fight in the shade. Bacon.
 That high mount of God whence light and shade
 Shine both. Milton.
 4. An obscure place, properly in a grove or close wood by which the light is excluded.
 Let us seek out some desolate shade, and there
 Weep our sad bosoms empty. Shakefp.
 Regions of sorrow, doleful shades. Milton.
 Then to the desert takes his flight;
 Where still from shade to shade the son of God,
 After forty days fasting, had remain'd. Milton.
 The pious prince then seeks the shade,
 Which hides from light his venerable maid. Dryd.
 5. Screen causing an exclusion of light or heat; umbrage.
 Let the arch'd knife
 Well sharpen'd now assail the spreading shades
 Of vegetables, and their thirsty limbs dis sever. Philips.
 In Brazil are trees which kill those that sit under their shade in a few hours. Arbutnot.
 6. Protection; shelter.
 7. The parts of a picture not brightly coloured.
 'Tis ev'ry painter's art to hide from sight,
 And cast in shades what seen would not delight. Dryd.

S H A

8. A colour; gradation of light.
 White, red, yellow, blue, with their several degrees, or shades and mixtures, as green come in only by the eyes. Locke.
 9. The figure formed upon any surface corresponding to the body by which the light is intercepted.
 Envy will merit as its shade pursue. P. p.
 10. The soul separated from the body; so called as supposed by the ancients to be perceptible to the light, not to the touch.
 A spirit; a ghost; a manes. Dryd.
 To Trachin swift as thought the fitting shade
 Thro' air his momentary journey made. Dryd.
 Ne'er to these chambers where the mighty rest;
 Since their foundation, came a nobler guest;
 Nor e'er was to the bow'rs of bliss convey'd
 A fairer spirit or more welcome shade. Tickell.
 To SHADE. v. a. [from the noun.]
 1. To overspread with opacity.
 Thou shade'st
 The full blaze of thy beams, and through a cloud
 Thy skirts appear. Milton.
 2. To cover from the light or heat; to overspread.
 A seraph his wings wore to shade
 His lineaments divine. Milton.
 And after these, came arm'd with spear and shield
 An host to great, as cover'd all the field;
 And all their forehead like the knights before,
 With lawrels ever-green were shaded o'er. Dryd.
 I went to crop the sylvan fencs,
 And shade our altars with their leafy greens. Dryd.
 Sing, while beside the shaded tomb I mourn,
 And with fresh bays her rural shrine adorn. Pope's Wint.
 3. To shelter; to hide.
 Ere in our own house I do shade my head,
 The good patricians must be visited. Shakefp.
 4. To protect; to cover; to screen.
 Leave not the faithful side
 That gave thee being, still shades thee and protects. Mil.
 5. To mark with different gradations of colours.
 The portal stone, inimitable on earth
 By model, or by shading pencil drawn. Milton.
 6. To paint in obscure colours.
 SHA'DINESS. n. f. [from shady.] The state of being shady, umbrageousness.
 SHA'DOW. n. f. [reacu, Saxon; shadow, Dutch.]
 1. The representation of a body by which the light is intercepted.
 Poor Tom! proud of heart, to ride over four inch'd bridges,
 to court his own shadow for a traitor. Shakefp.
 Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player,
 That struts and frets his hour upon the stage,
 And then is heard no more. Shakefp.
 Such a nature,
 Tickl'd with good success, disdains the shadow
 Which he treads on at noon. Shakefp.
 The body, tho' it moves, yet not changing perceivable distance with some other bodies, the thing seems to stand still, as in the hands of clocks, and shadows of sun-dials. Locke.
 2. Opacity; darkness; shade.
 By the revolution of the skies
 Night's sable shadow from the ocean rise. Denham.
 His countenance probably lived within the shadow of the earthquake and shadow of the eclipse. Addis.
 3. Shelter made by any thing that intercepts the light, heat, or influence of the air.
 In secret shadow from the sunny rays,
 On a sweet bed of lillies softly laid. Fa. Queen.
 Here father, take the shadow of this tree
 For your good host. Shakefp. K. Lear.
 4. Obscure place.
 To the secret shadows I retire,
 To pay my penance till my years expire. Dryd.
 5. Dark part of a picture.
 A shadow is a diminution of the first and second light. The first light is that which proceeds immediately from a lighted body, as the beams of the sun. The second is an accidental light spreading itself into the air or medium proceeding from the other. Shadows are threefold: the first is a single shadow, and the least of all; and is proper to the plain surface where it is not wholly possessed of the light. The second is the double shadow, and it is used when the surface begins once to forsake your eye, as in columns. The third shadow is made by crossing over your double shadow again, which darkness by a third part. It is used for the inmost shadow, and farthest from the light, as in gulfs, wells, and caves. Peacocks.
 After great lights there must be great shadows. Dryden.
 6. Any thing perceptible only to the sight; a ghost; a spirit; or shade.
 Hence, terrible shadow!
 Unreal mock'ry, hence! Shakefp.
 7. An imperfect and faint representation; opposed to substance.
 If substance might be call'd that shadow seem'd. Mil.
 In the glorious lights of heaven we perceive a shadow of his divine countenance. Raleigh.
 Without

S H A

- Without the least impulse or shadow of fate. Milton.
 Amongst the creatures are particular excellencies scattered,
 which are some shadows of the divine perfections. Tillotson.
 8. Inseparable companion.
 Sin and her shadow, death. Milton.
 Thou my shadow
 Inseparable mult with me be long. Milton.
 9. Type; mystical representation.
 Types and shadows of that destin'd feed. Milton.
 10. Protection; shelter; favour.
 Keep me under the shadow of thy wings. Psalms.
 To SHA'DOW. v. a. [from the noun.]
 1. To cover with opacity.
 The warlike elf much wondered at this tree,
 So fair and great, that shadowed all the ground. Fa. Q.
 The Assyrian was a cedar with fair branches, and with a shadowing throud. Ezek. xxxi. 3.
 2. To cloud; to darken.
 Mifake me not for my complexion;
 The shadow'd livery of the burning sun
 To whom I am a neighbour. Shakefp.
 3. To make cool or gently gloomy by interception of the light or heat.
 A gentle south-west wind comes creeping over flowery fields and shadow'd waters in the extreme heat of summer. Sidney.
 4. To conceal under cover; to hide; to screen.
 Let every soldier hew him down a bough,
 And bear't before him; thereby shall we shadow
 The number of our host, and make discovery
 Err in report of us. Shakefp.
 5. To protect; to screen from danger; to shroud.
 God shall forgive you Cœur de Lion's death,
 The rather, that you give his offspring life,
Shadowing their right under your wings of war. Shakefp.
 6. To mark with various gradations of colour, or light.
 Turnoil is made of old linen rags dried, and laid in a saucer of vinegar, and set over a chafing dish of coals till it boil; then wring it into a shell, and put it into a little gum arabick: it is good to shadow carnations, and all yellows. Peacocks.
 From a round globe of any uniform colour, the idea imprinted in our mind is of a flat circle, variously shadowed with different degrees of light coming to our eyes. Locke.
 More broken scene, made up of an infinite variety of inequalities and shadowings, that naturally arise from an agreeable mixture of hills, groves, and vallies. Addis.
 7. To paint in obscure colours.
 If the parts be too much distant, so that there be void spaces which are deeply shadowed, then place in those voids some fold to make a joining of the parts. Dryd. Duff's story.
 8. To represent imperitely.
 Whereat I wak'd and found
 Before mine eyes all real, as the dream
 Had lively shadow'd. Milton Parad. Lost.
 Aquilus is shadow'd in the person of Eneas. Dryd.
 I have shadowed some part of your virtues under another name. Dryd.
 9. To represent typically.
 Many times there are three things said to make up the substance of a sacrament; namely, the grace which is thereby offered, the element which shadoweth or signifieth grace, and the word which expretheth what is done by the element. Hook.
 The shield being to defend the body from weapons, aptly shadow out to us the continence of the emperor, which made him proof to all the attacks of pleasure. Addison.
 SHA'DOW. adj. [from shadow.]
 1. Full of shade; gloomy.
 This shadowy desert, unfrequented woods,
 I better brook than flourishing peopled towns. Shakefp.
 With shadowy verdure flourish'd high,
 A sudden youth the groves enjoy. Fenton.
 2. Not brightly luminous.
 More pleasant light
Shadowy sets off the face of things. Milton.
 3. Faintly representative; typical.
 When they see
 Law can discover sin, but not remove
 Save by those shadowy expiations weak,
 The blood of bulls and goats; they may conclude
 Some blood more precious must be paid for man. Mil.
 4. Unsubstantial; unreal.
 Milton has brought into his poems two actors of a shadowy and fictitious nature, in the persons of sin and death; by which he hath interwoven in his fable a very beautiful allegory. Addis.
 5. Dark; opaque.
 By command, e're yet dim night
 Her shadowy cloud withdraws, I am to haste Homeward. Mil. Parad. Lost.
 SHA'DY. adj. [from shade.]
 1. Full of shade; mildly gloomy.
 The wakeful bird
 Sings dawning, and in shady covert hid Tunes her nocturnal note. Mil. Parad. Lost.
 Stretch'd at ease you sing your happy loves,
 And Amarillis fills the shady groves. Dryd.

S H A

2. Secure from the glare of light; or fultriness of heat.
 Cast it also that you may have rooms shady for summer, and warm for winter. Bacon.
 SHAFT. n. f. [reacu, Saxon.]
 1. An arrow; a missile weapon.
 To pierce pursuing shield,
 By parents train'd, the Tartars wild are taught,
 With shafts shot out from their back-turned bow. Sidney.
 Who in the spring, from the new sun,
 Already has a fever got,
 Too late begins those shafts to shun.
 Which Phœbus thro' his veins has shot. Walr.
 They are both the archer and shaft taking aim afar off, and then shooting themselves directly upon the desired mark. More.
 So lofty was the pile, a Parthian bow
 With vigour drawn, must send the shaft below. Dryd.
 O'er thee the secret shaft
 That wafts at midnight, or th'undreaded hour
 Of noon, flies harmless. Thomson.
 2. [Shaft. Dutch.] A narrow, deep, perpendicular pit.
 They sink a shaft or pit of six foot in length. Corew.
 The fulminating damp, upon its accension, gives a crack like the report of a gun, and makes an explosion so forcible as to kill the miners, and force bodies of great weight from the bottom of the pit up through the shaft. Woodward.
 Suppose a tube, or as the miners call it, a shaft, were sunk from the surface of the earth to the center. Arbutnot.
 3. Any thing straight; the spire of a church.
 Practise to draw small and easy things, as a cherry with the leaf, the shaft of a steeple. Peacocks.
 SHA'G. n. f. [reacu, Saxon.]
 1. Rough woolly hair.
 Full often like a shag-hair'd crafty kern,
 Hath he con'erled with the enemy;
 And given me notice of their villanies. Shakefp.
 Where is your husband?
 He's a traitor. Shakefp.
 Thou lie'st thou shag-ear'd villain.
 From the shag of his body, the shape of his legs, his having little or no tail, the slowness of his gate, and his climbing up of trees, he seems to come near the bear kind. Grew.
 True Winney broad cloth, with its shag unthorn,
 Be this the horseman's fence. Gay.
 2. A kind of cloth.
 SHA'G. n. f. A sea bird.
 Among the first sort we reckon shags, duck, and mallard. Car.
 SHA'GGED. } adj. [from shag.]
 SHA'GGY. }
 1. Ruggedly; hairy.
 They change their hue, with haggard eyes they stare,
 Lean are their looks, and shaggy are their hair. Dryd.
 A lion's hide he wears;
 About his shoulders hangs the shaggy skin,
 The teeth and gaping jaws severely grin. Dryd.
 From the frosty north
 The early valiant Swede draws forth his wings,
 In battailous array, while Volga's stream
 Sends opposite, in shaggy armour clad
 Her borderers; on mutual slaughter bent. Philips.
 2. Rough; rugged.
 They pluck'd the seated hills with all their load,
 Rocks, waters, woods, and by the shaggy tops
 Uplifting bore them in their hands. Mil. Parad. Lost.
 There, where very desolation dwells,
 By grotts and caverns shaggy'd with horrid shades,
 She may pass on with unblench'd majesty,
 Be it not done in pride. Mil.
 Through Eden went a river large,
 Nor chang'd his course, but through the shaggy hill
 Pass'd underneath ingulph'd. Milton.
 How would the old king smile
 To see you weigh the paws when tip'd with gold,
 And throw the shaggy spoils about your shoulders. Addis.
 Ye rugged rocks! which holy knees have worn,
 Ye grotts and caverns shaggy'd with horrid thorn. Pope.
 SHA'GREEN. n. f. [chagriner, French.] The skin of a kind of fish, or skin made rough in imitation of it.
 To SHA'GREEN. v. a. [chagriner, French.] To irritate; to provoke. Both should be written chagriner.
 To SHA'IL. v. n. To walk sideways; a low word.
 Child, you must walk strait, without skewing and shailing
 to every step you set. L'Estrange.
 To SHAKE. v. a. preterit, shook; part. pass. shaken, or shook.
 [reacan, Saxon; shacken, Dutch.]
 1. To put into a vibrating motion; to move with quick returns backwards and forwards; to agitate.
 Who honours not his father,
 Henry the fifth that made all France to quake,
 Shake he his weapon at us, and pass by. Shakefp.
 I will shake mine hand upon them, and they shall be a spoil to their servants. Zech. ii. 9.
 I shook my lap and said, so God shake out every man from his house, even thus be he shaken out and emptied. Neb. v.
 The
